

Phishing indicators Report

- support@micros0ft-security.com → Contains a subtle typo: “micros0ft” with a zero instead of an “o”. This is a classic spoofing trick.
- The link is masked: Text: “Click here” → URL: <http://secure-login.micr0soft.com/verify>
 - A legitimate Microsoft domain would use <https://login.microsoftonline.com> or <https://account.microsoft.com>.
- “Your account has been suspended”, “Failure to act within 24 hours”, “permanent suspension” — These are scare tactics to provoke a quick reaction.
- Slight oddities like “micros0ft-security.com” or missing commas and robotic tone suggest poor grammar/automated generation.
